the final resting place of Robert Alexander. However, the witness told police that he knew Robert had been cremated after his death on Christmas Day of 2010.

In addition, shortly after Brashear went missing, Jack Alexander sold a Chrysler Concord to the witness for $1,000 and the witness told police that the trunk of the car had been stripped of all its carpet and cleaned.

The witness told police he was certain that Tina Brashear and the contents of that car's trunk were buried in that grave.

According to the affidavit for arrest of James Alexander, investigators confirmed that Robert Alexander had died in 2010 and was cremated.

Alexander was arraigned for the murder last month and had entered a plea of "not guilty."

He father was also arraigned and charged with accessory to murder. He also pleaded "not guilty."

The Creek County District Attorney's Office maintains that Brashear's remains have not been found, but would not comment on whether the suspicious gravesite had been exhumed.

there can be several reports during the weekends."

Considering that two of the break-ins occurred on 11 street, police are entertaining the possibility that some of the crimes were committed by the same individual or individuals.

"It's more than likely the same individual or group," says Sweger. "We have an up-kick of crime every summer from individuals who are bored and out wandering around out night "

Sweger maintains that residents should make a simple preparation in order to keep their vehicles safe from possible thieves.

"The number one thing that people can do to reduce the likelihood of having things stolen from them is to lock their vehicles. We stress this every year," said Sweger. "Sometimes burglars will break a window to get in, but nine times out of 10, people have broken in because motorists have left their car unlocked. The last guy we caught breaking into cars we had on video. The video showed him walking down the street trying door handles. Whenever he found a car unlocked, he'd stop and steal from it."

guidelines of "youthful offender." In the case of youthful offenders, juvenile officials must relinquish supervision over the individual. But the offender can be bridged over to adult prison.

Mooney broke into the Jenks home of Escue's parents on Dec 17, 2012. Escue interrupted the burglary, Mooney forced her into another room and shot her in the head with a rifle that had been found in the residence. Mooney was arrested on Dec. 18 in Sapulpa after several of the items he had stolen had been recovered.

In May of 2012, Mooney was placed on probation after being found delinquent for the charges of cruelty to animals. In July, it was ruled that Mooney would remain on probation after being charged with assault and battery for choking and punching an individual in February.

The show pigs Mooney had maimed along with another individual, belonged to Shane

Hunt. The show pigs were maimed, with four stabbed in the back, and one receiving deep wounds to the eye. Each pig cost on average around $500, which combined with the amount of feed necessary to keep the pigs healthy brings the total to an estimated $4,000.
